

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a method for assisting a propelled flying object during landing and/or takeoff of. For assistance a, related to a landing and/or a takeoff area 10, stationary-generated fluid current is provided in order to introduce energy into the flying object. The invention likewise relates to an apparatus, which has a fluid current generator 11 for generating the fluid current.